Etiketten Labels

Our editorial staff is preparing the following focus topics:

Prepress (Software, hardware, colour management)

→ Data security despite the open system architecture

Innovation campaign 2020

→ IoT (Internet of Things) 4.0 for label printing

Offset printing companies have long been high-tech companies. Sophisticated IT systems are not only found in prepress, the pressroom is also a collection of complex electronics. We present a solution with which digital and analog systems send production data to a workstation and provide an overview of the entire production.

INNOVATIONS-OFFENSIVE 2020

Eine Aktion von Etiketten-Labels und Flexo+Tief-Druck

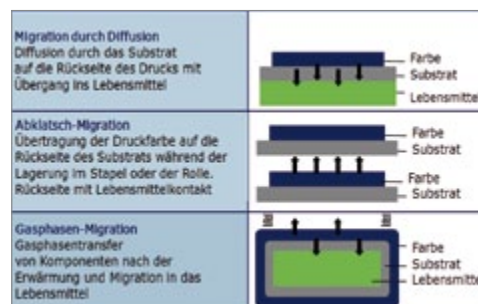

Technology in detail: DuraFlex – inkjet technology for label printing

With DuraFlex, Memjet has created an inkjet technology and peripherals that ensure higher speeds and more quality and flexibility in digital printing. In addition, the printheads should offer a longer service life than previous solutions. We present DuraFlex in detail.

New section „Ecology & Sustainability“

→ „Low Migration“ as a discipline

In order for packaging and labels to meet the requirement of “low migration” or, more appropriately, “migration-optimized”, much more is required than proof of compliant ink series and a printing press defined for these jobs by the print shop. For the printer, migration-optimized work is a discipline that serves to produce compliant products in packaging and label printing.

Best practice: Number of machines reduced, but output increased

Where other companies are proceeding step by step, the label manufacturer and specialist for labeling and marking solutions Etimark has taken a turnaround and carried out a major update in several areas. This includes an investment in the latest Nilpeter technology. We introduce the company and the current technology.

Adhesives: New solutions for special requirements

Special „Finishing & Veredelung“

A major trend that has emerged in recent years is towards hybrid machines – also in combination with finishing and converting systems. Whether analog plus finishing, digital plus finishing or analog / digital plus finishing - there are now many solutions for almost all requirements. We give an insight into the current state of technology.
